Enhancing the Data:

- Free Law Project developed a parsing system for the disclosures.
 - Takes the disclosure, whether it's a single-page TIFF, multi-page TIFF or PDF, scanned document or text, and converts it into machine-readable JSON data.
- A machine learning model to identify pages in the Senate hearing records that looked like financial disclosure documents.
 - Extracted 843 Financial Disclosure from over 250k pages of documents.
- Disclosures were converted into good PDF files and ingested the data into the database
- All data available via CourtListener APIs and website
- Connection of Financial Disclosures dataset with FLP's Judges database

Investigating Judges and the Courts

WSJ

Hidden Interests

Project with James Grimaldi, Joe Palazzolo,
& Coulter Jones

<https://on.wsj.com/3tRxpla>

Project Idea

Federal law prohibits judges and justices from hearing cases in which they or their families have a “legal or equitable interest, however small” in order to promote confidence in the judiciary.

– 28 U.S. Code § 455 (d)(4)

Tip: Compare data sets to find stories

Judges' Dockets

- WSJ and Free Law Project scraped district court websites to obtain the dockets of all judges
- The Journal compared judges' financial disclosure forms against their dockets and created long lists of potential conflicts
- James, Joe and Coulter went through thousands of potential conflicts using PACER

Tip: Whenever covering a federal suit, look up the judge's disclosure

ExxonMobil Oil Corporation v. TIG Insurance Company

Judge Ramos's 2016 and 2017 financial disclosure forms show that a brokerage account held $15,001 to $50,000 of Exxon Mobil Corp. common stock in those years (lines 92 and 82). His 2018 disclosure form shows that the same brokerage account held $15,000 or less of Exxon stock (line 78).

Judge Ramos was assigned to ExxonMobil Oil Corp. v. TIG Insurance Co. (1:16-cv-09527) on 12-12-2016. He granted Exxon's motion to compel arbitration on 2-2-2017 and confirmed the arbitration award on 5-18-2020. The case is currently on appeal.

Findings

- 152 federal judges around the nation have violated U.S. law and judicial ethics by overseeing 1,076 court cases involving companies in which they or their family owned stock.
- 61 judges didn't just own stocks of companies that were litigants. Accounts held by the judges or their families traded shares as suits were progressing.

In New York, U.S. District Judge Edgardo Ramos handled a suit between an Exxon Mobil Corp. unit and TIG Insurance Co. over a pollution claim while owning between $15,001 and $50,000 of Exxon stock. He accepted an arbitration panel's opinion that TIG should pay Exxon $25 million and added $8 million of interest to the tab.
